Thank you for purchasing this reader's notebook 40 book challenge.

This package was put together after much research to try to determine the best reading incentive program for my classroom. The following resources were read and adapted for my own classroom:

-Fountas and Pinnell: Guidelines for Reader's Notebook

-The Book Whisperer by Donalyn Miller

-A must read if trying to implement this 40 Book challenge

-Beth Newingham's class website for reader's workshop instruction

Thank you to Nick Lopez for your free clipart (follow him) and kevinandamandafonts for your awesome fonts!

I have included some photos to help aide in use, but for a more detailed description of how I use them, please refer to my blog at cortezcorner.wordpress.com.

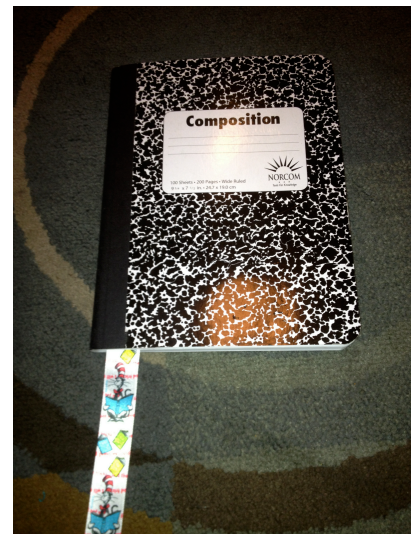

Teacher Instructions and Tips:

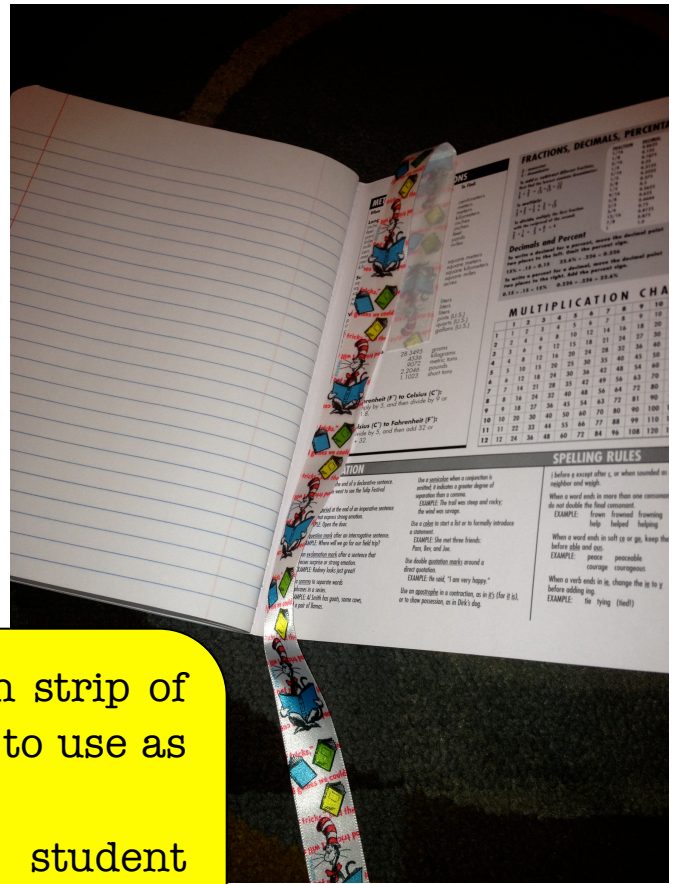

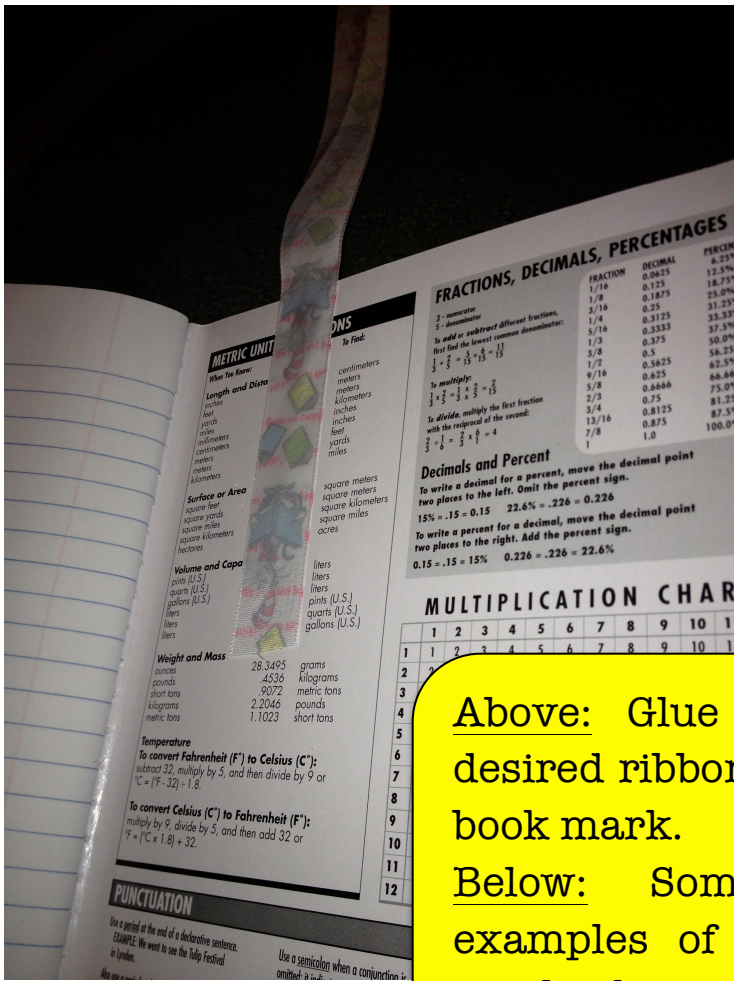

1. Before beginning a reader's notebook, I would highly suggest the following:
 - a. Blocking out a specific time for silent reading / individual conference time
 - i. This is the time I have set aside to meet with students individually and discuss their reading progress.
 - b. Managing the teacher response commitment
 - i. I split my class of 34 over the course of 5 days. Six students on Monday, six on Tuesday, etc. This way I wasn't collecting reader's notebooks all on a Friday and having to respond or make notes in 34 notebooks. You must figure out a system that works for you. So far, mine has been working.
 - ii. The students know which day they are to turn in their notebooks each week.
 - c. The first month of this challenge—plan a lot of review.
 - i. You will see the strengths and weaknesses of your students and will need to set aside time to address the whole class in regards to your expectations.
 - ii. It has taken one full month for my students to understand that their one page weekly response letters and signed parent sheets are due each week—No exceptions.

2. Materials needed for Reader's Notebook Decoration

- a. Standard Size Composition Book
- b. Different ribbons so students may choose one to be their book marks
- c. Hot glue gun—to glue book marks (ribbon)
- d. Modge Podge
- e. Student choice of magazine pictures, photos, Internet printout, etc.
 - These are used to personalize their covers.

Important Better to have students spread modge podge on front covers, then stick images on. Brush over another coat of modge podge and let dry. Otherwise, pics will come off.

Above: Glue in strip of desired ribbon to use as book mark.

Matilda

Dear Mrs. Cortez,

Matilda is working out for me. I LOVE this story. The reason that I like this story is that she loves to read books, just like you! The sad stuff was that like is when her parents do not care about her. The only person that likes her is the librarian and a little bit of her mother. Her teacher and her brother are the ones that think she is dumb, selfish, not thankful, and they think that she has no manners. So far so good, I LOVE this story!

Dear Mrs. Cortez,

I am in the process of reading Pork Diaries and Alkie goes to this party and this boy named Bradon asks her out and she get so excited that she stood up all night waiting for a call and she has no call and now she thinks that he's been kidnapped by Aliens.

Also what happens in this is book Nickie...

Students decorated cover of notebooks with pictures and photos.

“Books I Plan to Read” is used as just a heading. Students skip a couple of pages to make room for all the books they would like to read this year.

*This is the page that I use because I have decided to make my challenge a 40 book challenge. If you choose to adjust your numbers, I have added a blank book challenge and genre requirement page. You can determine the requirements for your class.

40 BOOK challenge

The time has come.
Let's do this!

Dear _____,

You are about to embark on something that will be new, challenging, exciting, and extremely rewarding. You must try your best to stick it out and, I promise, you will be so happy that you did.

Happy reading!

Sincerely,
Your teacher

Letters to your teacher

Date

Dear _____,

This year, you and I will write letters to each other about books, reading, and authors. Our letters will give us a chance to share our thoughts and feelings about books.

Write a letter to me to share your thinking about the book you are reading. The completed letter is due on _____ each week. Use the letter format you see on the "student example" page of this notebook to help you in the letter writing process. If you are having trouble deciding what to write about, read over the "possible topic ideas" list. Your letters should be interesting and unique. These are your thoughts!

It is important that your letters are neat and easy to read so that your thoughts can be easily understood. When you think you have finished, be sure to proofread it to make sure it is just the way you want it.

I look forward to reading about your thinking and having interesting conversations with you about books this year.

Sincerely,
Your Teacher

Student Example Response Letter

Example taken from "The Book whisperer" pg. 101

5/12/08

Dear Mrs. Cortez,

I am in the process of reading Inkheart! I absolutely LOVE this book! I'm at the part where Fengolio and Meggie read the tin soldier back into the re-written, happy ending of a story. They are now trying to figure out a way to change Inkheart into making the shadow kill Capricorn. I am eager to see how it ends! I know there is a sequel called Inkspell. Is that worth my time to read?

I thought the Theif Lord was a little slow in the beginning, but I like the middle a lot! I thought it was cool how at first they were in the abandoned movie theatre and then moved to the Lady's house. I also liked how the detective was so nice to the kids and was on their side. I liked the way the author wrote the part when BO was taken by their Aunt. It really showed the love connection between BO and Prosper!

Sincerely,

Molly
